Early indications are that night school classes in Torrance will be more popular than ever this year. Classes are being formed now. Persons desiring to enroll should do so at once.

The machine and auto shops at the high school will be open Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights for the auto shop class. An instructor in automobile repairing is in charge.

The wood shop class will meet Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights. Instruction is given in furniture making and wood turning. Mathematics and mechanical drawing is offered. The course includes arithmetic, algebra, geometry and trigonometry, blueprint reading and drafting.

Commercial courses in shorthand and typewriting and bookkeeping are offered for Monday and Wednesday nights.

The gymnasium class for women will be held on Tuesday and Thursday nights in the high school gym. Calisthenics and games, with some swimming parties, are on the schedule.

Men's night school gymnasium classes will meet Monday, Wednesday and Friday. This class will form baseball leagues to play during the winter.

In the music room of the high school each Thursday night there will be a community sing. The director, Miss Marjorie Elachen, extends an invitation to the public to "come on up and join in the singing."

On Tuesday nights at 7 o'clock a cooking class for women is scheduled. Pastry cooking, canning and diet cooking will be features. Students may cook at the school for home consumption.

A class in Spanish for beginners will meet each Monday night, and one for advanced students each Wednesday.

with a steadfast companion. Good-natured girls are seldom upstage, seldom quarrelsome, rarely nagging, not often suspicious. Romance blossoms perennially when the party of the first part is cheerful, helpful—good-natured. Men marry good-natured girls.

Men marry companionable girls. A marriage based on passionate love may endure for a year and a day and then expire by reason of its own intensity. A marriage based on convenience, expediency, or any other gross inspiration seldom survives beyond the pale of mutual tolerance. But a marriage in which the contracting parties have ideas and ideals in common, in which companionship is the dominant note—this is the marriage which survives, in which the principals live happily forever afterward. Companionship is built on mutual respect, quiet affection, and the give-and-take spirit. Companionable girls must build their charm on the homelier virtues. A maiden who knows the latest dance steps, who is to the fore with modern frocks, who is familiar with the newest ideas—she is a delightful experiment, but as a steady companion she cannot survive. The homely virtues are the ones which endure. Men marry companionable girls. —Copyrighted.

Rev. and Mrs. E. E. Clark, formerly of Lomita, are now living at 5333 Summer avenue, Eagle Rock, where they will be pleased to see their friends who may wish to call.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Hall of Narbonne avenue entertained on Wednesday, Sept. 1, in honor of their forty-eighth wedding anniversary. Guests at the event were Mrs. E. Hall and Mrs. Tom Sidebotham and son.

WE GIVE S & H GREEN STAMPS

LILTS O'LOVE AND LAUGHTER
 By Judd Mortimer Lewis

THE EVERYDAY BOY
 There's a place in my heart may be filled by no wooing
 The breezes of summer or flowers may try,
 A sort of a throne that shall know no undoing
 While dark storm-clouds gather or smiles the blue sky;
 Though far I may wander 'midst pleasure or danger,
 There's still a warm corner no time may destroy,
 And warm is my welcome to neighbor or stranger—
 The fun-loving youngster, the everyday boy.

The boy who's so wise that I bow me before him
 And hark to the wisdom 'tis his to bestow;
 All the ways of the birds, of the trees that arch o'er him,
 All, all of the things my own youth used to know;
 He's my chum through the ages, our thoughts flow together,
 There's a joy in his presence no lifetime may cloy;
 Through the stress of the years my old soul breaks its tether
 And romps down the way with the everyday boy.

Then give me the boy with piratical longings,
 Whose dreams are of damsels in pitiful plight;
 Who dreams of the years that shall bring to him thronging
 Fruition of fancy's most impudent flight;
 The boy who would fight, or would leave home and mother
 Before he'd wear duds like a young Fauntleroy;
 The boy whose ambition, no setbacks can smother,
 That grins-faced urchin, the everyday boy.

PHILOGRIN
 I always tell the world "Good night!" when I climb on the hay,
 And say "Good morning!" when the sun starts on a brand new day.
 And morning I don't do new grins
 —on my face, on my heart—and that's how I tag happiness. I get a running start.

The folk next door kept us awake in the evenings long gone by; they sang so loud and played so loud we could not bat an eye. And now they have a radio and sleep gives up the ghost, chased hence by the loud singing of a girl in Painted Post. But we wear a seraphic grin and fuss not nor perspire—we're thinking soon we can tune in and hear the heavenly choir. —Copyrighted.
